LOUIS ROEDERER

CHAMPAGNE

Elite Hotels are proud to feature Louis Roederer Brut Premier as our pouring Champagne. The Louis Roederer House has remained an independent, family-owned company and is now managed by Frédéric Rouzaud, who represents the seventh generation of the lineage within the Roederer family. With the same patience and unshakeable faith in its creative vocation, the House of Louis Roederer's annual exports total three million bottles around the world.

The estate, which originally comprised 100 hectares acquired in 1850, now extends over 240 carefully chosen hectares, acquired in the best terroirs of Champagne: The Grand and Premier Crus of the Vallee de La Marne.

The men and women of Louis Roederer have a profound attachment to the vineyards and is what distinguishes their House from all others. All the wine growers are perfectly acquainted with their parcels and even each vine, which they tend year after year. This creates a unique link between the vines and the men and women who dutifully and lovingly, devote their time to them.

In 1876, shortly after the Grand Hotel had opened its doors to welcome its first guests, Louis Roederer II who had succeeded his father, created the Cristal cuvée for Tsar Alexander II. Cristal is made according to the strictest criteria, and only Pinot Noir and Chardonnay grapes from the House's 10 most celebrated crus are used in the production of this legendary cuvée.

Austria is considered by many to be one of the best-kept wine secrets in Europe and for the last few decades it has been very much in the shadow of neighbours Germany and Italy when it comes to recognition for its wines. But Austria has an incredibly long and fruitful history of winemaking, with evidence suggesting that vines were in existence in Austria more than 60 million years ago and were also cultivated by the Celts and the Romans.

Other Regions of Interest

A region is a large area of land that is different from other areas of land, for example because it is one of the different parts of a country with its own customs and characteristics, or because it has a particular geographical feature.

Israel

After many years where in Israel the wine industry was almost non-existent, the past twenty years herald a change in path. In the late eighties there were only a couple of wineries in Israel.

Judean Foothills

Red

The wine has a deep dense purple colour. On the nose it is intense and complex, discreetly oaked with classical warm peppery and red fruit aromas. The palate is full bodied, well balanced, and spicily fresh with good acidity and well integrated tannins.

Lebanon

Lebanon is among the oldest sites of wine production in the world.
The Israelite prophet Hosea (780–725 BC) is said to have urged his followers to return to God so that they will blossom as the vine and fame be like the wine of Lebanon.

Bekka Valley

Red

655 - CHÂTEAU MUSAR, Hochar Pere et Fils   2000 £99.50
Concentrated and powerful, but very well balanced. Now at 20 years plus after the vintage, the 2000 holds on to its primary fruit whilst really starting to reveal the classic Musar identity, balancing out the characteristic sweet spice and desiccated fruit notes with more evolved elements of leather, tar, tobacco and a hint of game. These complex aromas and flavours are lifted with a fresh lick of acidity that will ensure the wine will continue to age gracefully for years to come.

Romania

Similar in size to wine-producing countries such as Chile and Portugal but lesser-known on the world wine stage. Romania has one of the oldest wine-making traditions in the world and its viticulture dates back more than 6,000 years. Due to suitable climate, relief and soils, viticulture became a current activity of the local inhabitants.

Ville Timisului

Rosé Selection

It is not known when the first wine labelled as a rosé was produced, but it is very likely that many of the earliest red wines made were closer in appearance to today's rosés than they would be to modern red wines.

Magnums (1500ml Bottles)

Larger wine bottle sizes are well suited to longer aging of Bordeaux wine or other wines. It is a fact that wine from larger format wine bottles age more slowly, and possibly even develop more complexity and nuances than wines from smaller wine bottle sizes. This is due to the smaller amount of air, or more accurately, (oxygen and sulphur dioxide) that resides between the cork and the wine.

Dessert Wines

Dessert wines are gaining rapidly in popularity for finishing off a dinner and in many instances are being drunk instead of having a dessert rather than with it. In the past by far the most popular were the French Sauternes such as Chateau d'Yquem, but the improvement of production techniques has led to the New World wineries producing superb dessert wine at much more competitive prices.

Port

Most people are familiar with the sweet, dark, tannic, richly fruited style of Vintage and Single Quinta Ports which are bottled fairly young and will then slowly age to mellowness. Less commonly appreciated are the cask-matured Ports known as Tawny which are typically lighter in colour, with soft, spicy, nutty flavours and less overt fruitiness which are typically drunk as an accompaniment to cheese or dessert.

Warres

Madeira

Madeira ranges in colour from pale blond to tawny; its flavour from very dry to very sweet. The two below are well worth a try and the Dry would pair well with game, cheese, nuts and fruit (particularly tropical fruit - fresh, dried or crystallised). The Malmsey is a good alternative to a dessert wine and is perfect with chocolate and toffee puddings.

Blandy's

The Blandy family is unique in being the only family of all the original founders of the Madeira wine trade to still own and manage their own original wine company. Throughout its long history on the island, the family has played a leading role in the development of Madeira wine. Members of the family continues to live on Madeira, maintaining a tradition that goes back to 1811: 2 centuries of fine wine production.

| Malmsey (Sweet) Vintage 1964 | N/A 50ml | £180.00 75cl |
|------------------------------|----------|--------------|

This soft wine bears the name of the Portuguese island where it is made. This is a warm, fragrant wine along the same lines as a Port. The first colonials settled on the island in 1420, planting vines on volcanic soil. From the 18th century, Madeira wine travelled East and West. American President Thomas Jefferson was to lift a glass of Madeira in commemorating American independence. Vintage Madeiras are the result of a rigorous selection process of wines from excellent years. They contain only a single traditional grape variety, with the most common being Sercial, Verdelho, Bual or Malmsey. They are stored in oak barrels or vats for at least twenty years. The ageing potential of these wines is truly exceptional.

Sherry

Sherry became very popular in Great Britain, especially after Francis Drake sacked Cadiz in 1587.

At that time Cadiz was one of the most important Spanish seaports, and Spain was preparing an armada there to invade England. Among the spoils, Drake brought back after destroying the fleet were 2,900 barrels of sherry that had been waiting to be loaded aboard Spanish ships. This helped popularize sherry in the British Isles.
